YOUNG AND OLD

Have Been Summoned by Death's Messenger During The Past Week.

CLAYBROOKE.

The sad news has been received here of the death of Hubert H. Claybrooke, which occurred in Scottsboro, Ala., yesterday at 5 p. m. Typhoid pneumonia was the cause of Mr. Claybrooke's death. Mr. Claybrooke had been sick for only a few days and it was only yesterday morning that his relatives at this place were notified of the seriousness of his condition. Immediately his mother and his brothers, W. D., J. R., J. S. and John left for Alabama, but arrived after the death of Mr. Claybrooke.

Mr. Claybrooke was born about thirty-two years ago near Texas, in this county, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Claybrooke, two of the most respected citizens of this county. He was one of twelve children; his death being the first to occur in the family.

Mr. Claybrooke spent the early years of his life in this county, after which he went to Cincinnati to engage in business. He was quite successful there but seeing a good opening left and went to Scottsboro, Ala., where he engaged in the mercantile business. Since beginning business he had rapidly built up and at the time of his death was enjoying a lucrative trade.

About six years ago he married Miss Viola Butler, of Scottsboro, and to this union three children were born.

Hubert Claybrooke was a young man of fine character and fine ability and possessed of that sense of honor and gentleness which is characteristic of the Claybrooke family. Under any circumstances this death would be sad, but when it is recalled that his is the first to occur in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Claybrooke it is especially so.

PEYTON.

Died, at her home five miles from Springfield, Mrs. Melissa Peyton, of paralysis of the brain, Monday, Nov. 15, at 11:30 p. m.

Mrs. Peyton was born in this county July 26, 1854, and was a member of the Purden family, which for many years has been prominent in the Texas neighborhood. Some years ago she was married to Mr. Wilson Green, one of the wealthiest and best known men of this county. Mr. Green died about ten years ago and about four years ago Mrs. Peyton was married to her present husband, Mr. J. Bailey Peyton, of Tennessee. Both marriages were filled with happiness for the contracting parties.

Mrs. Peyton had been in bad health for some time, but on the night of her death was apparently better than usual and in the best of spirits. She had written a letter before retiring but shortly thereafter complained of a severe pain in her eyes and the back of her head. Mr. Peyton immediately arose and summoned medical aid, but when the physicians arrived she was beyond relief and died at 11:30 o'clock.

The funeral services were conducted this morning at 10 o'clock at Bethlehem church, of which the deceased had for years been a faithful member.

Mrs. Peyton was a Christian and a charitable woman who commanded the admiration and respect of all who knew her and came in contact with her. Besides her husband Mrs. Peyton is survived by Dr. Jas. F. Peyton of Louisville, Rev. R. L. and W. S. Purdon, of this county, and a sister who lives in Boyle county.

THOMPSON.

The many friends of the family living here and those who remembered the youth were grieved to hear of the death of J. W. Thompson, Jr., which occurred at the home of his parents, Judge and Mrs. J. W. Thompson, in Indianapolis last Friday, typhoid fever being the cause of death.

J. W. Thompson, Jr., was born here about fifteen years ago and was the third child of Judge and Mrs. Thompson. While still quite a child his parents moved to Indianapolis, where they have since resided. J. W., with a fine character and intelligence, under the tutelage and training of fond and Christian parents had grown from childhood to be a splendid youth whose prospects for the future were of the brightest when he was summoned to answer the final call. He was a devoted member of the Episcopal church and was a member of the choir at his church in Indianapolis.

The remains were brought here Saturday night and the funeral services conducted on Sunday by Rev. R. E. C. Lawson. The remains were interred in the Thompson lot in Pleasant Grove cemetery.

ROBERTSON.

Little Dudley Robertson, the four-year-old child of the late J. B. and Mrs. Edie Robertson, died Monday morning at 11:30 o'clock of a complication of diseases. Dudley was one of the twins and while his little sister had always been robust he had never enjoyed good health.

The little fellow was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in St. Dominic's cemetery.

A host of friends sympathize with Mrs. Robertson in her bereavement.

EDELEN.

W. K. Edelen, the three-year-old son of Mr. Will Edelen, died at the home of his father, near Mantion, yesterday afternoon and was buried at St. Rose this morning. To the grief-stricken parents we extend our sympathy.

HIGH PRICES

Being Realized For Leaf Tobacco at Both Houses.—Some at 20c Last Saturday.

Three large tobacco sales have been held on the loose leaf markets below town during the past week. At each sale large quantities of tobacco have been disposed of at fancy prices, ranging from 10c to 20c per pound.

On Thursday the Farmers Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Co. sold 54,000 pounds at an average price of 11 1/2c a pound, while on Saturday on the same market 75,000 pounds were sold averaging 14 cents per pound. The Washington County Tobacco Warehouse Co. sold about the same amount and at about the same price.

To-day's sale brought about 65,000 pounds to the market of the Washington County Tobacco Warehouse Co. and about 40,000 pounds to the Farmers Loose Leaf House. At both places the bidding was lively and the prices good. The sales at the Farmers market were held held late for The Sun to publish, but at the Washington County Warehouse market some of the best sales were as follows:

PRENTICE BOBLITT

Shot and Probably Fatally Wounded Last Night.—Negro Who Shot Him is Still at Large. Capture Expected at Any Time.

Last night at 6 o'clock in the rear of the lobby of the Walton Hotel and near the dining room door Henry Stites, a young mulatto waiter at the Walton, shot and probably fatally wounded Prentice Boblitt, a well known young man of this place.

From all that can be gathered it seems that the negro some little time before the affray had cursed Neal Boblitt, a younger brother of Prentice, and that later on Neal accompanied by Prentice returned to the hotel to inquire why the negro had cursed young Boblitt. When approached by the two young men, so it is alleged, and asked why he had used the insulting language of which he had been guilty the Stites boy is said to have pulled his pistol and fired one shot which penetrated the abdomen and bowels of Mr. Boblitt. The negro then ran through the back part of the hotel and into the open and was lost to view.

Mr. Boblitt was taken to Hayden & Robertson's Drug Store, where a preliminary examination was made by Drs. Mudd, Ray and Lampton. He was later moved to his home and Dr. McChord was called in to assist in the operation which was performed by him and Dr. Mudd and the bullet, one fired from a .38 caliber pistol, was found lodged in the muscles of the back. It had entered the left side of the abdomen and coming in contact with the large intestine had cut it for a length of five or six inches after which it lodged in the muscles of the back. After removing the bullet the physicians sutured the injured intestine.

At the time of the shooting supper was being served while the lobby was filled with guests and visitors who quickly fled at the report of the pistol. The shot was fired at such close range that Mr. Boblitt's clothes were burned.

Blood hounds were last night brought out from Louisville. A posse led by Marshal Grace started out with these to look for the negro, but after trailing him to the home of Louis Montgomery lost the trail although it led towards Jimtown. Nothing has been heard of the boy but it is thought that he will be but a short time until he is apprehended.

Mr. Boblitt, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Boblitt and a partner in the livery firm of R. C. Boblitt & Co., is in a very critical condition and his recovery is very doubtful.

The negro who did the shooting is a son of Uncle Stites, who used to clean up the clerk's office and the lawyers' offices about town. The boy has been away from here for some years and returned only about two months ago.

Old Relic.

Mr. Oscar Vandivier, the well-known rural route mail carrier, has in his possession a most interesting relic in the shape of an arithmetic, which is now 108 years old. The entire book was penned with a goose quill, there not being a line of printing in it. It contains all the departments found in the modern arithmetic, and the writing and figures are nearly executed. The book belonged to Mr. Vandivier's great-grandfather, Charles Brown, who lived in this county in the pioneer days.

Mr. Vandivier values the book very highly. He is thinking of donating it to the State Historical Society at Frankfort, and in this event it would no doubt attract much attention.—Haroldsgar Republican.

PRESIDENT TAFT ISSUES OFFICIAL PROCLAMATION OF THANKSGIVING DAY.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Thursday, November 25, was today officially proclaimed by President Taft as Thanksgiving day. The President's proclamation was issued, as usual, from the State Department, where it received the seal of the United States.

The following is the text of the proclamation:

"By the President of the United States of America:

"A proclamation:

"The season of the year has returned when, in accordance with the reverent custom established by our forefathers, the people of the United States are wont to meet in their usual places of worship on a day of Thanksgiving to return thanks to God for the great mercies and benefits which they have enjoyed.

"During this past year we have been highly blessed. No great calamities or flood or tempest or epidemic have befallen us. We have lived in quietness, undisturbed by wars or rumors of wars. Peace and the plenty of bounteous crops and of great industrial production animate a cheerful and resolute people to all the renewed energies of beneficent industry and material and moral progress. It is altogether fitting that we should humbly and gratefully acknowledge the divine source of these blessings.

"Therefore, I hereby appoint Thursday, the 25th day of November, as a day of general thanksgiving, and I call upon the people on that day, laying aside their usual vocations, to repair to their churches and unite in appropriate services of praise and thanks to Almighty God.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, this 15th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nine, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-fourth. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

"By the President.

"P. C. KNOX, Secretary of State."

Good Year for Kentucky Farmers.

Corn Crop Shows Heavy Increase And a Record Yield of Burley Tobacco.—Fine Weather Conditions and All Crops Good. Mules High and Hard to Buy.

The year that is now ending has been a very favorable one for the Kentucky farmer, according to the monthly crop report from the State Department of Agriculture, which has just been issued by Assistant Commissioner James W. Rankin. This is the last report that will go to the farmers for this year, as it is customary for the department to suspend its bulletin service during the winter months when there is practically nothing upon which to report. There was no recurrence of dry weather such as injured late crops to such a considerable extent last year. The report says in part:

On the whole the year has been a very favorable one for the farmer. The weather has been almost ideal farming weather since July 1, from which time this report covers. The drought of the past year was not evident, as enough rain fell during the month of July, and with the exception of some localities, during August and the first part of September, when it was real dry, the farmers were enabled to harvest every crop and house it nicely.

The average wheat yield for this State was not very heavy, being about eleven bushels. This should be increased, and can be made possible if the proper rotation of crops is practiced by the farmers.

A large acreage of corn was planted this year, and in fact is the largest for many years, if not the largest yield ever planted, and more attention was given to seed selection and proper cultivation than ever before. I inaugurated a series of corn-growing contests for boys and girls and wherever they have been held they have been very successful. A number of counties are having corn shows and it seems that Kentucky will be a contending rival against the great corn-growing States of the West. The average yield for the State this year is thirty bushels per acre.

The oats crop in Kentucky this year was a good one as against a complete failure of last year. An average yield for the State this year is twenty bushels per acre.

The hemp crop this year was exceedingly light and the prospects for a good price are good.

The rye acreage is very small in the State and an average yield is only about nine bushels per acre.

Practically no barley was raised in the State.

About the usual crop of dark tobacco was grown, possibly a little less than last year, and the average yield produced.

The acreage of Burley tobacco was very large, being about the largest, if not the largest, ever grown in the State. The quality is good and the average yield is about 900 pounds per acre for the State.

The fruit crop taken as a whole was very light. In some localities there is a good crop of apples. Peaches, cherries, plums and strawberries were very light.

Horses are holding up fairly well in numbers and are selling at a very good price, the average being $101 for the State. Mules are scarce and are selling for an average price of $130, and are hard to buy at all.

Cattle not as plentiful as they were last year and are selling from 3 1/2c to 5 1/2c, the average for the State being 4c. Sheep are increasing in numbers owing to scabies being among them and the State being under Federal quarantine—the average price for the State is 4c. Hogs are scarce and are selling high, prices ranging from 6c to 7c. There is little or no disease among them, taking the State as a whole, but in a few localities we have heard of cholera. The general condition of live stock for the State is 94.

Poultry and poultry products are higher now than ever before. Chickens range from 8 1/2c to 12c per pound and eggs are selling anywhere from 16c to 25c in the country.

Clover and alfalfa are scarce and selling for good prices. Clover averages $10.50 per ton, while alfalfa is selling at $12.25.

BOY BANDIT

Kills One Man and Seriously Wounds Two Others in New Albany.—One a Native of Springfield.

A horrible tragedy occurred in New Albany last week when Thos. Hoal, a youth of seventeen, whose mind had been poisoned by the reading of yellow back fiction, killed Hangary Pawest, cashier of the Merchants National Bank of New Albany, seriously wounded J. K. Woodward, the President, and fatally wounded Jas. Tucker, the negro chauffeur, who drove him from Louisville to the bank in New Albany.

Hoal had for a long time been a constant reader of cheap fiction and had formed the idea of robbing a bank. In furtherance of this he had built a shipping box in which to make his escape and had procured numerous fire arms.

Thursday morning while the colored chauffeur of Mrs. Walter Escott was cranking the machine the youthful bandit approached him and putting a pistol against his head commanded Tucker to drive him to New Albany.

Throughout the trip Hoal kept a pistol pressed against the negro and when the bank was reached the colored man was forced to accompany Hoal, the former carrying the sack in which the loot was to be carried away. Upon entering the bank the employees were commanded to throw up their hands, but before all could comply the bandit began firing and before the fusillade was finished one man was dead and two others severely wounded. The negro was shot while trying to escape from the bank. Hoal escaped to the river where he was captured and almost lynched before he could be gotten to the Reformatory.

The youth has never seemed to realize the enormity of his crime. He states that he did not wish to kill anyone but merely desired money.

The negro, Jas. Tucker, who was one of the victims of Hoal's pistols and who will probably die, is a native of Springfield, being a son of Aunt Henry Tucker and a brother of Louis Tucker. When he lived here he was industrious and bore a splendid reputation. He stands well in Louisville as can be seen by the interest taken in him by Mrs. Escott for whom he works and whose automobile he was forced by Hoal to use.

The people here who knew Jim hope for his recovery, although but little hope for it is held out.

CIRCUIT COURT

Adjourned Saturday.—Prathers Win in Their Suit Against W. L. Keeling.

Circuit Court adjourned Saturday, after having been in session about two weeks.

The most important case tried was that of J. T. Prather and others vs. W. L. Keeling, to decide the ownership of about an eighth of an acre of land in the Northern part of the county. The Prathers, alleged that Keeling in building a wire fence had set it a few feet on their land which was denied by the defendant. Each side introduced many witnesses while the case was ably argued by W. C. McChord and J. W. Lewis for the plaintiffs and T. S. Mayes and W. F. Grigsby for the defendant. The trial began on Tuesday and on Saturday at noon the jury brought in a verdict awarding the land in controversy to the plaintiffs. The defendant has filed a motion and grounds for a new trial.

How Father Fixes Things.

(Chicago Post.)

Last week our clock got out o' fix An' pa took it up one night An' said he'd tinkered up its ticks So it would work all right. Ma said he'd better send it down To some repairin' man; Pa said: "If anyone in town Can fix this clock I can." At fixin' things pa has a knack— But there's two wheels he can't put back.

When our front door lock wouldn't work Pa got the box o' tools And took the lock out with a jerk. He said that folks is fools That spends big money for repairs That anyone can do. He swore, an' I was sent upstairs Before the job was through. An' Mr. Jones, the locksmith, he Sold us a new lock an' a key. An' when our kitchen sink had leaks My pa said: "Don't you send For plumbers. They will work two weeks Before the leak they'll mend." He got his monkey wrench an' tried To twist the pipe around— An' then he had to run outside For fear that he'd be drowned. The plumber says the pipes won't burst If you turn off the water first. Once pa put in a window pane— Or started to, until He broke the glass an' cut a vein An' let the putty spill. Down on the carpet an' out A chair an' broke his back, An' yelled for heaven's sake to get The word to Doctor Black. So now when things is broke, my Ma Says: "Children, don't tell your pa."

Wholesale Grocery Sold.

Yesterday morning a sale was consummated whereby the Lebanon Grocery (Incorporated) was transferred to the owners of the Cumberland Grocery Company, of Burnside, Ky. The sale embraced the stock, fixtures, teams, and good will of the former owners.

The Lebanon Grocery Company was organized by local men in 1907 and has done a good business since its organization. Mr. C. W. Hagan and the present employees of the old company will continue in the employ of the new company, except Messrs. B. J. Lancaster and J. L. Powell, the latter two, however, will remain several weeks, until their successors can be selected. Then Mr. Powell will devote his attention to the retail store of Powell & Hays, of which he is a partner, and Mr. Lancaster expects to personally look after his farms, finding that his health has suffered by being too closely confined.

The new owners expect to hold suitable quarters in Lebanon for the business in the spring and carry a much larger stock of goods than has heretofore been carried.

The Cumberland Grocery Co. is chiefly owned by the Davidson Brothers, of Glasgow, Ky., who own six other wholesale houses, in different sections of this State, besides a large wholesale produce house in Springfield, Mass. They are through business men, have plenty of capital and will do a flourishing business in this section. Mr. W. J. Davidson and Mr. Norman Taylor, of Burnside, consummated the deal.—Marion Falcon.

Are You Sick?

Much sickness is due to a weak nervous system. Yours may be. If it is, you cannot get well until you restore nerve strength. Your nervous system is nature's power house; the organs of your body get their power from it. If the power is not there, the action of the organs is weak, and disease (sickness) follows. Dr. Miles' Nervine cures the sick because it soothes the irritated and tired nerves and gives the system a chance to recuperate. Try it, and see if you do not quickly feel its beneficial effect.

WILLIAM O. HEAD, MAYOR.

Wm. O. Head, who, two weeks ago, defeated Mayor Jas. F. Grinstead for Mayor of Louisville, was yesterday inaugurated as chief executive of Kentucky's Metropolis. The inaugural ceremonies took place in the Council Chamber and were witnessed by a large crowd of friends and enthusiastic admirers of Mayor Head. The oath of office was administered by Judge Shackelford Miller. After the ceremonies had been completed Mayor Head held a reception in his office where his hand was grasped by hundreds of Louisville citizens and friends from out in the State who were there to rejoice with them over Louisville again being in the Democratic ranks.

Upon taking the oath of office Mayor Head delivered a short address in which he promised to give Louisville a good, clean business administration, to keep the police and fire departments out of politics and to close the saloons on Sunday.

Mayor Head's appointees are among the best known and most high standing of Louisville citizens, and his appointees auger well for a splendid administration of the city affairs.

A Business Parable.

Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat, which he sold, not to a single grain merchant, but to 1,800 different dealers, a bushel each. A few of them paid in cash, but far the greater number said it was not convenient then; they would pay later. A few months passed, and the man's bank account ran low. "How is this?" he said. "My 1,800 bushels of grain should have kept me in affluence until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and have instead only a vast number of accounts, so small and scattered that I cannot get around and collect fast enough to pay expenses." So he posted up a public notice and asked all those who owed him to pay quickly. But few came. The rest said: "Mine is only a small matter, and I will go and pay some of these days," forgetting that, though each account was very small, when all were put together they meant a large sum to the man. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so badly that he felt out of bed and awoke, and, running to his granary, found his 1,800 bushels of wheat still safe there. He had only been dreaming. Moral.—The next day the man went to the publisher of his paper and said: "Here, sir, is the pay for your paper, and when next year's subscription is due you can depend on me to pay promptly. I stood in the position of an editor last night, and I know how it feels to have one's honestly earned money scattered all over the country in small amounts."—Ex.

Returns From Rome.

The Right Rev. Edmond Obrecht, abbot of Gethsemane, has returned home from a trip to Rome and France, where he has been for the past two months on business connected with his Order, the Trappists. He returned direct from Rome where he went after attending a meeting of the general chapter of the order at the Cîteaux monastery, the seat of the order. The headquarters of the order are now at Rome.

He will probably leave again next spring on a tour of the other monasteries located in various parts of the world.

$5.00 and Cost.

Uncle John Nantz, a well known colored man of this place, was tried before Judge Noe Monday on the charge of having committed a breach of the peace by shaking and otherwise ill using his wife. The cause of the trouble was alleged infidelity on the part of John, who was accused by his wife of having gone places he "hadn't orter." John averred that his better half had such a bad tongue and such a bad temper that she finally aroused him to such a pitch that he could no longer control himself and he gave her a slight shaking as a regulator. The complaint is twice as large as her husband and on dope should have been able not only to defend herself but to have given John a good thrashing. She explained, however, that on the night the fight occurred her good right was out of commission.

Judge Noe said $5 and costs and the court adjourned.

In Prison.

Washington, Nov. 15.—For the first time in American history six men are in prison tonight for contempt of the Supreme Court of the United States. For the first time, too, the Federal Government has placed men behind the bars as an outcome of the lynching of a negro.

At the United States jail in this city Capt. Joseph F. Shipp, former Sheriff at Chattanooga, Tenn.; Jeremiah Gibson, his jailer, and Luther Williams, Nick Nolan, Henry Padgett and William Mayes, of the same city, began this afternoon to serve terms of imprisonment imposed a few hours before by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Shipp and Gibson had been found guilty of failing to protect from a mob Ed Johnson, whose legal execution for criminal assault had been stayed by the Supreme Court until that tribunal could review the case.

The others had been found guilty of participation in the lynching of a Federal prisoner. Shipp, Williams and Nolan were given sentences of ninety days each imprisonment, while Gibson, Padgett and Mayes each received sixty days.

An Erroneous Report.

The statement recently given wide publicity by Kentucky newspapers that on and after January 1, 1910, it will be unlawful for a person to give a check for less than One Dollar, is without the slightest foundation. Concerning the report the Treasury Department a short time ago issued the following statement:

"There is no law which prevents a man or woman from writing a check for less than a dollar, despite reports to that effect. A number of inquiries have been received at the department regarding a statement that there was such a provision in the penal code about to go into effect. The law governing the subject, instead of being a new one, was enacted back in the sixties and has never been construed to apply to checks on deposit. Its purpose is to prevent the circulation of private paper as lawful money itself."

"The report was absurd on its face, as every individual has the right to check on his own money in any amount he sees fit."

"A Kentuckian Kneels To None But God"

(Colonel William Crittenden, of Kentucky, with his men, was shot in Cuba by the Spaniards in 1891. In the account published at the time it was stated that Colonel Crittenden was reserved for the last. When all his followers had been shot he was told that if he would get down on his knees in them that they would spare his life. But he folded his arms across his breast and in a firm tone declared that he would kneel only to his God.)

Ah, tyrant, forge thy chains at will— Nay, gall this flesh of mine. Yet, though it is unfettered still And will not yield to thine, I take, take the life that heaven gave, And let my heart's blood stain thy sod.

But know ye not, Kentucky's brave Will kneel to none but God? You've quenched fair freedom's sunny life, Her music tones have stilled, And with a deep and darkening blight The trading heart has filled; Then do you think that I will kneel Where such as ye have trod? Nay, point your cold and threatening steel— I'll kneel to none but God.

As summer breezes lightly rest Upon the quiet river, And gently on its sleeping breast The moonbeams softly glow, Sweet thoughts of home light up my brow,

When goaded with the rod; Yet these can not sustain me now— I'll kneel to none but God. And though a sad and mournful tone Is coldly sweeping by, And dreams of bliss forever flown Have dimmed with tears mine eye, Yet mine's a heart undying still, Heap on my breast the rod; My soaring spirit soars thy will— I'll kneel to none but God. —George D. Prentice.

To hear the miraculous tales of hunting that the boys are telling this week, one would think they have more sport than "Teddy" in the jungles of Africa. Everyone believes he "crippled" that rabbit that got away or that it will die from the scare he gave it.

Every morning we may see Owen surrounded by two or three girls, seemingly busily at work on his algebra. We have never found out whether he assists the girls with their problems or gets them to help him. If there was any way of finding out, perhaps we would learn that they don't work algebra at all.

"As, where the air is serene in the sultry solitudes of summer, suddenly gathers a storm." These lines from Evangeline might have been used on last Monday noon. The girls seemed to be having an unusually good time until the bell rang. Then the history class was called and one by one as they missed were sent to the board to write History the rest of the afternoon. Their gaudy and mirth was soon changed into regret that they did not work instead of having such a good time breaking up chalk on the floor.

SAM'S STRATAGEM.

It Saved Mary's Lover When She Herself Would Have Failed.

By ARTHUR W. PEACH.
Copyright, 1900, by Associated Literary

The slim girl, busy in the garden path, straightened suddenly as she heard her name called softly and anxiously.

"Here I am, Sammy," she answered clearly.

A little fellow shot from round the corner of the shed, his eyes wide and fearful. He swung himself on his crutches close to where she was standing and whispered hoarsely:

"Mary, they're going to shoot Jim tonight. I heard them say so."

"With a low cry she dropped the trowel in her hand and grasped the little cripple's shoulder. 'Sammy, where are they?' she asked."

"They're in the back room of the barn," was his answer. And she was gone.

Word had come among the mountain people that the government was sending spies among them in an attempt to discover where they were carrying on their illegal distilling, and Mary had known for some time that Jake Emmons, whom she knew as a cripple, knew as their father, was trying to direct the suspicion of his friends toward the suspicious stranger known as Jim Symons, who had recently come among them.

Symons in his ready, friendly way had made friends with her, and often came to the little cabin to see her. She had warned him of his danger, but he had carelessly told her not to worry.

Now, as she slipped softly down the walk to the shed, her heart beating fast and hard, her only fear was that she would not be able to save the brave, fearless young fellow who had won her heart. She heard the low mutter of voices, and, kneeling close to the boards of the barn, she listened. Emmons was speaking.

"There's only one way to stop this once for all. If we don't some of us are going to spend the rest of our days crutches. There was a rattling at the door. She waited in nervous fear. Slowly she heard the iron slide back. She was free!

She swung back to the door and gathered him in her arms. He gripped her tightly. "My brave little Sammy!" she whispered.

He answered bravely, yet trembling. "He said he'd kill me, but I dast!"

In a few moments her preparations were made. She turned at the door, and a sob gathered in her throat as she saw the white little figure watching her with silent appeal. "Mary, take me," was all it said.

"How can I? I will come back," she answered hurriedly. "I am going to warn him."

Down the broken path she fled, through the pasture, and turned up the narrow trail, hoping against hope that Emmons would take the long road to Symons' cabin and that she might reach him in time. Once she lost the path, and feverishly she hunted until she found it. At last she reached the slope above the creek, where among the low brush Symons had his shack. The light was burning; it looked peaceful, but well she knew that somewhere between her and the light Emmons was creeping with his rifle ready.

Her feet found the path. She pressed on as carefully as she could, determined to reach him in time to save him, but as she commenced the climb she wavered. The strain was telling. Suddenly she saw the face of a man show for a moment in the yellow light as he peered stealthily into the window of the cabin. The face disappeared. Then a long, shining thing leveled. All her will power she forced into her cry of warning, but it blended into the sound of the rifle as it gushed livid fire through the plight into the window.

There was a crash of wood, the sound of speeding feet, a sharp cry and silence. Mary staggered to the door, expecting to see her lover writhing in the death agony, but as she opened the door was thrown open wildly, and a strong face black with powder and set in line of battle bent over hers as he cried:

"Mary! Great heavens, what does this mean?" he fell.

"Jim, they were planning!"—She paused as she saw the look of understanding in his eyes. Then suddenly she saw the stain on his face. "Jim, you're wounded!"

He rubbed the powder from his face. "No, but I ought to be. That gun went off full in my face. Come," he said shortly, "you and I must get out of this quick! Mary, will you go with me wherever I go, for good and all?" His face was anxious and grave.

Her answer was not in words, but it seemed satisfactory.

A little later they rode away swiftly. At the pike Mary stopped her horse short. "Jim, there's Sammy. I told him I would come back for him."

"We will," was Symons' simple, quiet answer.

They had ridden only a short distance when abruptly out of the darkness a little figure scuttled, it was Sammy. "Mary, Mary! I knowed you'd come. It's me!"

Symons reached down from the saddle and gathered the frail little form in his arms. As they rode on he told him how the little fellow had released her that she might come to warn him. When she had explained it in a few tender words Sammy broke in:

"I fixed his gun too."

"How's that?" Symons asked, starting at the statement, for he knew he had looked squarely at a rifle muzzle and yet was unharmed.

"He loaded his gun while I was there and put it in a corner. I've loaded guns and knew what to do. I took the cartridge out when he wasn't in the room and squeezed the bullet off and put the cartridge back, and—"

"Sammy," Symons' arm went round him tightly—"it was you who saved my life!"

Symons snuggled close to him. "He keeps licking me, and I want to go. Where are you going?" he suddenly asked interestedly.

Symons laughed softly, a laugh of happiness. "I'm going to take you and Mary to a home where we can all be happy together."

Sammy sighed a long contented sigh as he felt that at last he was on his way to peace.

Notions About Sleep.

One of the rudest acts in the eyes of a native of the Philippine Islands is to step over a person asleep on the floor. Sleeping is with them a very solemn matter. They are strongly averse to waking any one, the idea being that during sleep the soul is absent from the body and may not have time to return if slumber is suddenly broken.

If you call upon a native and are told he is asleep you may as well depart. To get a servant to rouse you, you must give him the strictest of orders. Then at the night appointed he will stand by your side and call, "Senor, senor," repeatedly, each time more loudly than before, until you are half awake. Then he will return to the low note and again raise his voice gradually until you are fully conscious.

Time to Go.

While at sea between Malaga and Melilla rather an amusing incident occurred which shows an Englishman as others see us," says a writer in London Black and White. After dinner an orderly approached me unasked and produced a whiskey and soda. After a pause of ten minutes he repeated the performance. At the third repetition I remonstrated and at the same time asked him who he was. "Nothing, senor," he replied. "But we were told you were an Englishman and that we were to give you a 'whisk and soda' every ten minutes before you went to bed, and we have to obey orders." I went to bed.

in a brick coil. The thing to do is for some one to walk up to his window about supper time and finish him. That's did you hear any noise then? All right! We must flush him and have it over with."

Another voice went on: "It's the only way. Let's draw for the man."

Mary, quivering with the tension, listened. "It's you, Emmons," the voice said.

She started to leave, when suddenly, with a swift bang, the door was flung open. She had a dizzy sensation of being seized and shaken hard. Then things steadied, and she found herself looking into Emmons' cruel eyes.

"Oh, you would, would you?" he snarled, his eyes burning into hers. "You would put that spy wire to what we're going to do to him? We'll see whether you will or not!"

His strong hands seemed to crush her flesh where he held her. "You come with me!" he snarled at her.

He went into the house, and, opening a door into her own room, he threw her in and slid the heavy bolt. He turned to the little cripple, who stood staring him steadily from the doorway.

"Now, you leave that door alone or I'll—" He stopped, but the threat in his eyes made the little fellow quail. Mary heard it where she had fallen in her room. Through her brain, crazed with the thought of her lover in danger, sounded the last words she had heard. They were planning to shoot him in the night, and she was powerless.

Night came swiftly and silently. She stood near the small window and looked out. There was nothing to do save mark the hours as they passed until Emmons should return with work accomplished. Sammy, with his deep dread of Emmons, would not dare to help her, nor, knowing the price he must pay, would she ask him. Suddenly, when the dusk was heavy on the hills, the sound of Emmons' footsteps grew heavy and passed out on his murderous errand. Still as a statue, she listened. She caught the soft, low shuffle of the little cripple's
